

I am happy to write this letter of recommendation for Aleks Aleksandrov, who has worked as a Student Assistant in our Commercial Analytics department for a year. As manager, I have had the opportunity to work closely with Aleks and observe his professional development and contributions to our team.

During his time with us, Aleks took on responsibilities in three areas: conducting analytical work, creating reports, and optimizing operational processes. His performance in each of these areas has been impressive and has added measurable value to our department.

Aleks showed initiative in identifying opportunities for process optimization and automation. He proactively sought ways to improve our workflows and implemented solutions that increased our department's efficiency. This approach not only saved time but also demonstrated his understanding of how technology can enhance business operations.

Beyond his technical skills, Aleks proved to be a reliable and professional team member. He managed his responsibilities effectively, met deadlines, and communicated proactively when challenges arose. His positive attitude and willingness to learn made him a valued member of our team.

Unfortunately, we do not have any job openings, but I am confident that Aleks will bring the same level of dedication and analytical thinking to his future employer. He has my highest recommendation, and I believe he will be an asset to any organization fortunate enough to have him.
